

World Forum on Theology and Liberation
Fórum Mundial de Teologia e Libertação
Foro Mundial de Teología y Liberación
Forum Mondial de Théologie et Libération

World Forum on Theology and Liberation

Montreal, Quebec, Canada
August 8 - 13, 2016

Resist, Hope, Invent: Another World is Possible!

Final Program
(version: August 3rd, 2016)

Table of Contents

OVERVIEW CALENDAR	1
GENERAL PRESENTATION	3
OBJECTIVES	3
CORE ISSUES	3
FOCAL AREAS	4
PRACTICAL QUESTIONS	8
LOCATION OF ACTIVITIES	8
REGISTRATION AND HOUSING	8
LANGUAGES AND TRANSLATION	8
PROGRAM OVERVIEW	9
MONDAY, AUGUST 8 (JEAN-DE-BREBEUF COLLEGE)	9
8:45 : OPENING OF THE WFTL AND TRADITIONAL MOHAWK CEREMONY	9
10:00 : PLENARY - DECOLONIZING THE CHURCHES AND THEOLOGIES: SPIRITUAL PERSPECTIVES AND QUESTIONS OF THE INDIGENOUS PEOPLES	9
1:30: WORKSHOPS	10
Workshop 1. Overcoming violence: Eco-Liberation and Interreligious Dialogue	10
Workshop 2. Interculturality: African perspectives and Afro-descendents	10
Workshop 3. The Decolonial Turn and the option for indigeneity	10
Workshop 4. Deconstructing Representations that Produce Oppressions	11
Workshop 5. Concealing: Feminist and Gender Perspectives	11
Workshop 6. The green pages of the Bible	11
Workshop 7. Voluntary simplicity as a compas for « another world that is possible »	11
Workshop 8. Food Security and the Presence of the Church in Solidarity	11
SUMMARY OF INDIVIDUAL PRESENTATIONS IN WORKSHOPS ON AUGUST 8	12
Workshop 1. Overcoming violence : Eco-liberation and Interreligious dialogue “Teología de la Eco-Liberación”	12
“Por una espiritualidad macroecuménica del Pluralismo y Diálogo intercultural y interreligioso para otro mundo posible”	12
“La hospitalidad es el alma de la religión – el reto de la superación de la hostilidad y de la

creación de la hospitalidad"	12
Workshop 2. Interculturality: African and Afro-descendent perspectives	13
« Aloune Diop et le dialogue interreligieux »	13
« Genre, migrations et interculturalité pour une justice relationnelle »	13
"Interculturalidad, migración y resiliencia cultural"	14
Workshop 3. The Decolonial Turn and the option for indigeneity	14
"Resurrection of Jesus as Resurrection of the Ancestors: A Hermeneutic Prologue to Epistemic Decoloniality in Christian Theology"	14
"The Blues-Black Folk Blues: Blues Epistemology and the Quest for Trans-Plantation Humanity"	15
"Un/settling Relations within the Colonial Difference: Epistemic Disobedience and a Theology of Aurality and Healing"	15
Workshop 4. Deconstructing Representations that Produce Oppressions	15
"Jueces 19. Relectura indecente a partir de un caso paradigmático en México"	15
« Agir comme Abraham qui se soumet ou comme Dieu qui sauve le fils ? »	16
« Décoloniser Kateri Tekakwitha »	16
Workshop 5. Concealing: Feminist and Gender Perspectives	17
« Comment le féminisme islamique peut contrer la triple occultation des femmes croyantes musulmanes au Québec ? »	17
« Conjointes de même sexe au sein du christianisme : quelques pistes libératrices »	17
Workshop 6. Les pages vertes de la Bible	17
Workshop 7. Voluntary Simplicity as a Compass for "Another World that is Possible"	18
« Un autre sens de la « pauvreté » pour vivre autrement ?	18
Workshop 8. La sécurité alimentaire et la présence solidaire de l'Église	18
3:30 PM : PLENARY – TRANSFORMING KYRIARCHAL RELIGIONS AND THEOLOGIES: FEMINIST APPROACHES	19
5:20–BOOK LAUNCH: NOUS SOMMES LE TERRITOIRE! (WE ARE THE TERRITORY) – BY GROUPE DE THÉOLOGIE CONTEXTUELLE QUÉBÉCOISE (GTCQ) (QUEBEC CONTEXTUAL THEOLOGY GROUP)	20
5:30 PM – BOOK LAUNCH OF RELIGION, HUMAN DIGNITY AND LIBERATION AT THE WORLD FORUM ON THEOLOGY AND LIBERATION	20
ALL DAY: MUSLIMS OF QUEBEC EXHIBITION	20
7:30 – PRESENTATION: "VOIX DU SILENCE/VOICES OF SILENCE"	21
TUESDAY, AUGUST 9	22
8:30 AM – 12:30 PM – VISITS	22
2 PM: WSF OPENING FESTIVITIES	22
5:30 – 6 PM: OPENING MARCH OF THE WSF	22

6 PM – 11 PM: GRAND OPENING OF THE WSF	22
SELF-MANAGED WORKSHOPS AT THE WSF	23
COMMUNAUTÉS EN CERCLE : AUGUST 10 & 11, 9 AM – 5 PM	23
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10 TH , 9 – 11:30 AM	24
Workshop 9. De quelle vision de l'État et de quel projet de société les politiques d'austérité néolibérales sont-elles le nom ?	24
Workshop 10. Vérité et justice dans les coulisses du théâtre de la guerre	24
Workshop 11. L'Exercice des couvertures : Un exercice de sensibilisation à l'histoire coloniale et à la réalité des peuples autochtones d'ici	25
Workshop 12. Beyond Homo economicus	25
Workshop 13. La vie symbolique et la libération humaine, une voix à explorer entre les Premières Nations et les autres	26
Workshop 14. Nourrir et durer dans l'engagement social	26
Workshop 15. Nuestros ríos y nuestras montañas no se venden: las comunidades luchan por la justicia ecológica / Our rivers and mountains are not for sale: communities struggle for ecological justice	27
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10 TH , 1 – 3:30 PM	28
Workshop 16. Le dialogue interreligieux féministe	28
Workshop 17. Laudato Si : A Call for Change	28
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10 TH , 8 PM - SUR LES TRACES DE CAMILO (DOCUMENTARY) / EL RASTRO DE CAMILO / (IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF CAMILO) (DOCUMENTARY)	29
THURSDAY, AUGUST 11 TH , 9 – 11:30 AM	29
Workshop 18. Transforming Kyriarchal Religions and Theologies. Feminist Approaches	29
Workshop 19. Nonviolence, le fondement d'un autre monde possible	30
Workshop 20. Le revenu minimum garanti : Camper en dehors des murs de notre modèle économique	30
THURSDAY, AUGUST 11 TH , 1 – 3:30 PM	31
Workshop 21. The blanket exercise: an interactive exercise in awareness building about colonial history and the reality of the Indigenous Peoples	31
Workshop 22. Les mines : Impact sur la communauté locale	32
Workshop 23. A North-South Dialogue on Extractivism : Resistance and Alternatives	32

THURSDAY, AUGUST 11TH, 3 – 4 :30 PM	33
Sur les traces de Camilo (documentaire) / El rastro de Camilo (documental)	33
JEUDI, 16H00 – 18H00 : CONVERGENCE ASSEMBLY « GENDERED IMPACTS : INDIGENOUS WOMEN AND RESOURCE EXTRACTION »	33
FRIDAY, AUGUST 12 TH , 9 – 11:30 AM	34
Workshop 24. Construire l'interculturel à partir du contexte africain subsaharien : comment créer une justice intégrale?	34
Workshop 25. « Témoins d'un monde nouveau qui émerge »	35
Workshop 26. Our Land, Our Hope: Experience of Dispossession in Palestine and Canada and Theologies/Spiritualities of Liberation	35
FRIDAY, AUGUST 12 TH , 1 – 3:30 PM	36
Workshop 27. Oppression and Liberation: Diversity of Religious and Spiritual Perspectives	36
Workshop 28. Theology of liberation: A gift to the world	37
Workshop 29. Pour sauver nos territoires : un regard à changer	37
SATURDAY, AUGUST 13 (JEAN-DE-BREBEUF COLLEGE)	39
8:30 : OPENING AND CELEBRATION	39
9:00 : PLENARY - DECOLONIAL THEOLOGICAL ENCOUNTERS	39
10:45 : PLENARY – THEOLOGIES AND LIBERATION: THE CURRENT SITUATION	39
1:30 : EVALUATION OF THE WFTL / WSF	40
3:00 : SPEECHES AND CLOSING CELEBRATION	40
5:00 : 50 TH ANNIVERSARY OF DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE	40
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	41

OVERVIEW CALENDAR

Sunday August 7	Monday – August 8 Jean-de-Brebeuf College	Tuesday August 9	Wednesday August 10 WSF site	Thursday August 11 WSF site	Friday August 12 WSF site	Saturday - August 13 Jean-de-Brebeuf College
Arrival and welcome for those staying at Jean-de-Brebeuf College	7:45 am – Registration at Jean-de-Brebeuf College 8:45 – Opening of the WFTL 10:00 – Panel “Decolonizing the Churches and theologies: spiritual perspectives and questions of the Indigenous peoples” 11:00 – Pause 11:20 – Panel (cont.)	9 am – 6 pm – Welcome / Registration at the WSF 8:30 am – 12:30 pm Visits				8 am – Welcome 8:30 – Celebration 9:00 – Panel “Decolonial theological encounters” 10:00 – Exchange 10:25 – Pause 10:45 – Panel “Théologie et libération : the current situation
	12:15 – Lunch (included)	Lunch (on your own)				12:15 – Lunch (included)
	1:30 – Workshops 3:00 – Pause 3:30 – Panel and Ritual “Transforming Kyriarchal Religions and Theologies: Feminist Approaches” 4:45 – Follow-up (exchange and activity) 5:20 – GTCQ book launch 5:30 – WFTL book launch	2:00 – Opening festivity 17:30 – Opening march of the WSF	1 – 5 pm Self-managed activities WFTL / WSF	1 – 5 pm Self-managed activities WFTL / WSF	1 - 5 pm Self-managed activities WFTL / WSF	1:30 – Evaluation of WFTL/WSF 3:00 – Closing speeches and celebration
	6:00 – Supper (included)	Supper (on your own)				5 -7 pm – 50th anniversary of Development and Peace
	7:30 - Presentation: “Voix du silence/ Voices of Silence”	7:00-11 pm – Grand opening of the WSF	Sur les traces de Camilo	Cultural programing of the WSF

GENERAL PRESENTATION

Objectives

- To hold a forum, in a perspective of theology and liberation, around important issues of emancipation that are converging at this time;
- To share and celebrate the practices and know-how of groups from Québec and around the world who are engaged for justice, ecology, and peace;
- To build on the previous events of the World Forum on Theology and Liberation;
- To experience the encounter between voices from the global South, the Fourth World, and the North, keeping a critical perspective on the fact that the event is being held in the North;
- To experience an inclusive theological event, critical of oppression systems, which welcomes indigenous and secular voices as well as spiritual and religious traditions in their multiplicity;
- To develop the public events of the World Forum on Theology and Liberation in the context of the World Social Forum.

Core Issues

“Another world is needed. Together, it becomes possible!” This is the theme of the World Social Forum, which will take place in Montréal in August 2016. This other world is necessary, urgent, and already in the making.

It is needed because of the deleterious effects of capitalist imperialism and globalized neoliberalism, which include but is not limited to: militarism and political exploitation, market fundamentalism and ideological colonization, environmental crisis, global human insecurity, dispossession of peoples' territories along with their means of subsistence, cultures and memory. This dispossession is particularly experienced by indigenous peoples, by exiled populations, and by forced migrants across the world. Another world is needed as we see the various and enduring effects of colonization and coloniality upon indigenous peoples and colonized societies all over the world. We also need another possible world as many populations face religious violence.

Our planetary crises express themselves in global war waged by the living against the living as illustrated by patterns of social systems and relationships based on: domination of peoples by powerful elites; patriarchy, which multiplies the subordination of women and sexual minorities; racial and class stratification; interreligious hate and sectarian violence; fear that stirs migrants and refugees; systematic erasure of indigenous peoples; violence of neoliberalism against populations in precarious situations; neocolonial societal order imposed on populations in the Southern hemisphere; militarization and destruction of the Earth.

But another possible world is becoming visible in current alternative practices initiated by social and religious actors, in their indignation, in their creativity, in their practice of new ways of living, and especially in their intervention for constructive transformation. The work of the Spirit comes to light in anti-oppressive citizens' activism, environmentalists, pacifists, solidarity with indigenous peoples, welcoming of refugees and immigrants, and in many other social movements for human rights. There is room here for a liberating, subversive, prophetic, and prospective theology. New visions are emerging of the common good, with a focus on the concrete living world and its social and ethical ramifications for affirming human interdependence, exposing possibilities for new world realities and relationships, and for promoting together global peace (shalom, salam, skennenkowa – the Great Peace).

In secularized societies where Christian discourses intersect with secular ones, as well as with those from other spiritual traditions, a liberating theology finds its place within the World Social Forum as a practice marked by interaction with all other discursive practices focused on work for justice, life, and peace. While religions are radically criticized, we are committed to developing a spirituality which is socially relevant, grounded in solidarity, concrete, prophetic, and forward-looking.

Rigid and divisive interpretations of spirituality and religion can be found in various contexts, which fan the flames of violence and conflict and remind us that liberating theologies are also directed at religious and spiritual superstructures.

The World Forum on Theology and Liberation is a space for sharing and celebration of the emancipatory practices carried by the spiritual and religious traditions so often concealed by indifference, conservatism, and fundamentalism.

Focal Areas

(1) Indigenous peoples, between Marginalization and Empowerment

Canada remains challenged in 2016 by an aboriginal presence that is over ten thousand years old, but which remains in a position of extreme marginality, minimized both in mainstream history and in public debates. In Canada, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission on Indian Residential Schools (2010-2015) aroused relatively little interest among non-indigenous populations.

However, might the wind be turning? Indigenous rights are being recognized at the international level. In Canada, First Nations are engaged in a “return” to the forefront, refusing to remain invisible. What do they wish to contribute to elaborating global, liberating alternatives today, for themselves and for all peoples? What processes of decolonization and emancipation are indigenous peoples around the world currently developing and putting into practice?

Many indigenous peoples don't consider themselves religious as such. However, they say their whole life is spiritual. What does it mean for theology? How can a theological reflection, indigenous and not, contribute in developing emancipating alternatives for life in abundance (vivir bien), in the midst of the First Peoples' struggles?

(2) The Challenge of Hope in the Face of Environmental Crisis

Ecological calamity is permanently with us. More and more populations are reaching a critical juncture where life is reduced to mere survival. While countries in the global North have access to greater financial resources than those in the global South, these resources are allocated primarily to the consumption and commodification of nature rather than to the invention of other technologies, other lifestyles, and another culture of life. The results of COP21 are mitigated by the weak commitments made by rich countries.

Religious declarations and practices promoting ecological justice resonate way beyond religious circles. This encyclical conveys the urgency of global consciousness, one which is attentive to the real and concrete impoverishment of the living world, particularly of its significant impact on the global South. The current ecological crisis calls for a theologies of life, post-anthropocentric theologies. Facing a worldwide sense of hopelessness, often manifested as despair or resignation, theologies of hope becomes more relevant and urgent than ever.

(3) Peacebuilding and the Struggle against Militarization

The destructive impact of the wars currently being waged on Life and on civilian populations is patently shocking, and it affects the entire planet. The coalition constituted by civil society organizations of Quebec, “Échec à la Guerre” declares support for the “struggles against the United States’ open tendency to exert military domination on the planet.” This coalition reports that “80 to 90% of victims of war after the Cold War have been civilians,” and that “84% of the weapons produced and sold in the world come from North America and Western Europe.” How can we struggle against this well-established political and economic system of intense militarization, which marks our era?

Multiple groups, often grassroots organizations, contribute to conscientization about the urgency of active commitment to demilitarization. They are generating a diversity of alternative practices for peacebuilding. Which critiques of a culture of war are most urgent and necessary? How do they change the perspectives and/or possibilities of emancipation? What visions of peacebuilding are emerging? How do they intersect with the various struggles for justice and environmental justice? Finally, as peacebuilding is also a spiritual issue, we invite contributions to share insightful visions of peace, capable of opening perspectives for a global peace between humans and with all living beings.

(4) Land, Territories, Dispossession and Mobilization

The dispossession of the common good takes place today through the despoliation of territories at the service of neocolonial and financial interests which pillage their wealth. Corporations covet and easily obtain the mineral, oil, forest, and aquatic resources, among others, upon which thousands of human beings across the world depend. Driven by a domineering and an utilitarian vision of nature, and compelled by desire of serving the economic interests of the few, the exploration and exploitation of those resources too often occur at the expense of the integrity of both, the ecosystems and the populations living within them.

Humans do not conceive of their lands simply as reservoirs of resources. For them, land and territory are also their home, locations of memory, sites of dreams and encounter, of love and of mourning: they are places charged with history and symbolism. Both at local and international levels people are engendering alternative struggles for: resisting territorial dispossession, opposing home demolitions and public spaces privatization, stopping the greed of civilian and military settlements, and ending colonizing occupation of their lands. What kind of religiously-based vision of land and territory can, or should, we provide? Working against the instrumental appropriation of territory and the uprooting of indigenous populations, what are the theological resources that we can contribute to celebrate these many struggles for the right of inhabiting one’s own land?

(5) Migration, Pluralism, Tensions over Identity and Interreligious Dialogue

Large cities are centers of migration, where debates about identity proliferate not only as migrants struggle, but also as they contribute to their host societies and develop perspectives on them. Societies in the global South are the first affected by a flow of migrants that is now well-known to them. Societies in the global North, on the other hand, struggle to understand how migration results from the neocolonial system that structures international relations.

Practices of solidarity and welcome are organizing and intensifying themselves. Many people are speaking out in favour of interculturality, a concept with various meanings and connotations. Spiritual traditions, often invoked to defend a closed approach to immigration, are also called upon to promote hospitality and sharing. Indeed, refugees of war, of sectarianism, of climate disruption or of economic crises impose on us the imperatives of the Golden Rule, of encounter, of hospitality, and of solidarity.

(6) Feminism, Gender, and Intersectionality

Feminist movements and theories have demonstrated a pervasive pattern of gender hierarchies at all levels of society, culture and religion, all to the detriment of women. Inequalities based on gender multiply women's subordination in all areas of life, particularly for women from marginalized social groups in the global South. Patriarchal cultural imperialism exacerbates women's subordination and violence against women by legitimizing socio-cultural values and relationships which are against the dignity and rights of women. The political use of human differences based on gender has stimulated women's dehumanization by intersecting with other social and religious inequalities based on social class, race and ethnicity, sexual orientation, and religious identity. In this way, Muslim and Jewish women frequently find themselves stereotyped by discourses intended to liberate them. Indigenous women experience disproportionate violence but this experience is often neglected. Gender inequality rooted on patriarchy and androcentric world-views is also manifested in discrimination against sexual minorities.

Voices of women can no longer be ignored in the world of religions. Even within the most constricting spiritual communities, women are making themselves heard. Many feminist religious, theological, and spiritual traditions have been developed in contemporary society and religion. Men and women alike bear the responsibility of both, supporting the global movement of justice for women and joining feminist theologians in their struggles to end religious patriarchy. While male theologians of liberation largely continue to remain silent about ending patriarchy, this Forum declares that another world will become possible when justice for women is fulfilled. What measures are we adopting to infuse our theologizing with the insights and contributions of feminist theologians of liberation? How can we contribute more actively to the transformation of patriarchal religions and theologies?

(7) Economics: Going Beyond Homo Economicus

Justice, environmentalism, and peacebuilding also have an important economic dimension. Many Western societies (Québec, Greece, Italy, Portugal, Spain, etc.) are experiencing the tension between neoliberal economic policies and the protection of the common good within a neoliberal global economy. The current imperialist system uses the idea of austerity to consolidate practices that favor the rich and the elites instead of an equitable distribution of wealth. The supposedly "realistic" and "sober" discourse of many proponents of neoliberalism often drowns out its victims' complaints. Moreover, "austerity policies" are not new: they constitute a permanent reality in many nations of the global South, where social benefits found in the global North are for the most part unheard of, where the destruction of the common good is a historical fact and its reconstruction an ever-present challenge.

Economists from various world locations have been abandoning the framework of neoliberal capitalist economics and growth, as they are becoming conscious that such an economic framework is rapidly moving towards a social and environmental stagnation at the planetary scale. There, too, economic models that respect the multi-dimensionality of the human condition and the limits of the living world are being sought. Beyond globalized neoliberal capitalism, alternatives include affirmation of an Economy for Life, which seeks to uphold the material conditions for making possible models of Good-Living, or living-well, within interdependent communities and sustainable environments. What are the religious resources available to us for contribution to alternative economics? How can we contribute to strengthen theological visions of an Economy for Life?

(8) Decoloniality, Engaging Epistemologies from the South and Indigenous Peoples

With most of our world still wrestling with the aftermath of colonization through coloniality, including North America and Eastern Europe, how do we understand these phenomena and become more conscious of what this means? How does it explain the interconnected network of oppression and domination exhibited in increasingly alarming ways in our world today? What sort of decolonial strategies are needed and possible within liberating theological endeavor? While our theological epistemologies and pedagogies still take for granted provincialized perspectives that have been given privileged status as universal validity through coloniality, what sorts of theological resources serve to shift our epistemological grounds in ways that de-link us from these false universalities? Epistemologies from the global south and from marginalized communities in the global north give expression to these ways of thinking and living in ways that challenge not only dominant social structures, but religious and theological structures as well. How do liberative theological voices acknowledge and engage decolonial projects even when they recognize the coloniality of their own voices? Engaging these disruptive and re-creative epistemologies is a necessary component to creating another possible and liberative world.

PRACTICAL QUESTIONS

Location of activities

On August 8 and 13: at Jean-de-Brebeuf College

On August 9: in the morning, on the sites of the visits; in afternoon and evening, on the sites of the WSF (opening march starting at Park Lafontaine, at the corner of Rachel St.).

On August 10, 11, 12: on the sites of the WSF.

Registration and housing

<http://justicepaix.org/fmtl-2016>

Languages and translation

The forum will take place in French, English and Spanish. There will be a simultaneous translation service (with a team and equipment) for the plenary activities and for those workshops that take place in the chapel. In the other workshops at Jean-de-Brebeuf College, identified persons will offer whisper translation for those who ask for it.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Monday, August 8 (Jean-de-Brebeuf College)

7:45 am: Registration (at the 5625 Decelles door)

8:45 : Opening of the WFTL and traditional Mohawk ceremony

Opening by Denise Couture, WFTL local organizing committee, Raphaël Canet, WSF organizing committee, and Luiz Carlos Susin, WFTL General Secretariat.

Mohawk traditionnal ceremony presided by Kevin Ka'nahsohon Deer (Faith Keeper of the Mohawk Trail Longhouse and the Mohawk territory of Kahnawake).

10:00 : Plenary - Decolonizing the Churches and theologies: spiritual perspectives and questions of the Indigenous peoples

- Chair : Jean-François Roussel
- Nicole O'Bomsawin, Abenaki, anthropologist, story-teller, Odanak, Quebec
- Eleazar López Hernandez, Centro Nacional de Ayuda a las Misiones Indígenas (CENAMI), DF Mexico
- Right Rev. Mark MacDonald, Ojibway, National Indigenous Anglican Bishop, Canada

French, English, Spanish (Simultaneous translation)

Making Indigenous People invisible is one of the effects of colonialism. Nevertheless, the Indigenous Peoples of the Americas have invented paths of liberation. Where are the Churches in this? In Canada, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission on Indigenous residential schools presented its final report in December 2015. The Commission states that there is no real reconciliation without an effort of radical decolonization. This decolonization needs to question the spiritual roots of colonialism. The residential schools were one of its products. In Abya Yala (Latin America) numerous Indigenous communities are re-reading their history, their current experience and their resistance at the intersection of their ancestral wisdoms and their Christian faith. They are doing so through an "Indian theology." How do Indigenous peoples perceive the Churches and Christian theologies today? Are they allies or obstacles in the decolonization of Indigenous peoples?

11:00: Pause

11:20: Panel (cont. – exchange and activity)

12:15: Lunch

1:30: Workshops

Workshop 1. Overcoming violence: Eco-Liberation and Interreligious Dialogue

Chair: Sophie Rolland, Anglican Church José María Vigil, "Teología de la Eco-Liberación" (Theology of Eco-Liberation) Marcelo Barros, "Por una espiritualidad macroecuménica del Pluralismo y Diálogo intercultural y interreligioso para otro mundo posible" (Towards a macroecumenical spirituality of pluralism : the intercultural and interreligious dialogoue for another possible world) Luiz Carlos Susin, "La hospitalidad es el alma de la religión – el reto de la superación de la hostilidad y de la creación de la hospitalidad" (Hospitality is the soul of religion : the challenge of overcoming hostility and of creating hospitality)	Spanish (Simultaneous translation)	B3-26 (Chapel)
---	---------------------------------------	----------------

Workshop 2. Interculturality: African perspectives and Afro-descendents

Chair : Lidbergh Mondésir, Université de Montréal - Paulin Poucoute, « Alioune Diop et le dialogue interreligieux » - Roberto E. Zwetsch, "Interculturalidad, migración y resiliencia cultural" - Albertine Tshibilondi Ngoyi : « Genre, migrations et interculturalité pour une justice relationnelle »	French, Spanish	D3-06
---	-----------------	-------

Workshop 3. The Decolonial Turn and the option for indigeneity

Chair: Michel Andraos, Catholic Theological Union, Chicago - Steven Battin, "Resurrection of Jesus as Resurrection of the Ancestors: A Hermeneutic Prologue to Epistemic Decoloniality in Christian Theology" - Rufus Burnett, "The Blues-Black Folk Blues: Blues Epistemology and the Quest for Trans-Plantation Humanity" - Joelle Morgan, "Un/settling Relations within the Colonial Difference: Epistemic Disobedience and a Theology of Aurality and Healing"	English	D3-41
---	---------	-------

Workshop 4. Deconstructing Representations that Produce Oppressions

Chair: Jean-Claude Ravet, Centre Justice et Foi, Montreal Jean-Guy Nadeau, « Agir comme Abraham qui se soumet ou comme Dieu qui sauve le fils ? » Dan González Ortega, “Jueces 19. Relectura indecente a partir de un caso paradigmático en México” Jean-François Roussel, « Décoloniser Kateri Tekakwitha »	French, Spanish	D3-25
---	-----------------	-------

Workshop 5. Concealing: Feminist and Gender Perspectives

Chair: Carmina Tremblay, L'Autre Parole, Montreal Carmen Chouinard, Université de Montréal, « Comment le féminisme islamique peut contrer la triple occultation des femmes croyantes musulmanes au Québec ? » Nicole Hamel, « Conjointes de même sexe au sein du christianisme : quelques pistes libératrices »	French	D3-03
---	--------	-------

Workshop 6. The green pages of the Bible

Norman Lévesque, Réseau des Églises vertes, Montreal, Quebec	French, English	D3-36
--	-----------------	-------

Workshop 7. Voluntary simplicity as a compass for « another world that is possible »

Organized by the Réseau québécois pour la simplicité volontaire (RQSV) - Dominique Boisvert	French, English	D3-15
--	-----------------	-------

Workshop 8. Food Security and the Presence of the Church in Solidarity

Organized by the pastoral workers of the Table of Pastoral Ministry of the Diocese of Montreal	French, English	D3-48
--	-----------------	-------

3:00 : Pause

Summary of individual presentations in workshops on August 8

The presentations on August 8 pm are summarized here in the languages in which they will be given. The workshop in the chapel will be offered with simultaneous translation. In the other rooms, translators will be present to translate the interventions.

Workshop 1. Overcoming violence : Eco-liberation and Interreligious dialogue

“Teología de la Eco-Liberación”

(“Theology of Eco-Liberation”)

Speaker: José María Vigil, Latinamerican Theological Commission and EATWOT's Theological Journal VOICES

Abstract : (1) VER: Igual que en los años 60/70 del siglo pasado surgió una nueva sensibilidad social y un nuevo paradigma teológico, el de la liberación, a partir de una situación de pobreza y miseria que fueron claramente percibidos como un «clamor que sube al cielo», 50 años más tarde estamos a ante un clamor no menos poderoso : el deterioro climático, concretados en un amplio conjunto de deterioros crecientes. (2) JUZGAR: Esta justificada la necesidad de una teología «revolucionaria» –es decir que no sea simplemente reformista–, que rompa con todos los presupuestos (paradigmas) tradicionales que nos han traído hasta aquí, que nos han puesto contra el planeta. Creemos justificada una Teología Revolucionaria de la Ecoliberación que proponga reformas/cambios/revoluciones radicales en la religión, para que el xmo deje de ser una religión que nos aparta de nuestras raíces y nos lleva a un mundo superior (segundo piso). (3) ACTUAR: Está justificado que intercambiemos ideas y sugerencias operativas para que, 50 años más tarde, desatemos una nueva onda humanización, la Teología Revolucionaria de la EcoLiberación. Son muchas las actividades que podemos programar.

Thematic Axis: The challenge of hope in light of the ecological crisis

“Por una espiritualidad macroecuménica del Pluralismo y Diálogo intercultural y interreligioso para otro mundo posible”

(Towards a macroecumenical spirituality of pluralism : the intercultural and interreligious dialofue for another possible world)

Speaker : Marcelo Barros

Abstract : Actualmente, diversas guerras y conflictos en nuestro mundo están ligadas al fundamentalismo religioso y al dogmatismo. Muchas de las grandes religiones de la humanidad si han desarrollado desde la construcción de prejuicios contra otras culturas y de formación de dogmatismos poco amorosos. Es necesario desconstruir el dogmatismo y trabajar una espiritualidad ecuménica que, en las diversas religiones, profundice la apertura amorosa à los otros y la misión de servir à la humanidad para la construcción de un nuevo mundo posible

Thematic Axis : Migration, Pluralism, Tensions over Identity and Interreligious Dialogue

“La hospitalidad es el alma de la religión – el reto de la superación de la hostilidad y de la creación de la hospitalidad”

(Hospitality is the soul of religion : the challenge of overcoming hostility and of creating hospitality)

Speaker : Luiz Carlos Susin

Abstract : La actividad pondrá como cuadro contextual la condición de pluralismo globalizado sea por secularidad, sea por migraciones, sea por afirmaciones culturales e religiosas. Se constata e se analiza los extremos de relativización hasta el relativismo radical por un lado y la afirmación fundamentalista sin posibilidad de pluralidad hermenéutica por otro lado. En este contexto, la violencia y la hostilidad en los diversos aspectos – económica, política, cultural - que se presenta en todo el espectro entre los dos extremos, tiene en la legitimación religiosa su más enigmática consolidación. Pero las tradiciones religiosas normalmente indican recursos para superación de la hostilidad en dirección a la hospitalidad hasta la más radical, que comporta una superación de orden cultural – intercultural – e religiosa – interreligiosa. La hospitalidad es el “inter” de las culturas y de las tradiciones y experiencias religiosas, y es la pacificación y en enriquecimiento de las identidades culturales y religiosas. Buscando ejemplos paradigmáticos, si es verdad que, con la antropología, se puede afirmar que “la religión es el alma de la cultura”, se puede afirmar más radicalmente el axioma: “la hospitalidad es el alma de la religión”. La presentación tendrá una atención especial a la tradición bíblica y cristiana centrada en Jesús por cuestión de honestidad con el lugar desde donde se sitúa el proponente. Al final, algunas propuestas prácticas de ejercicios.

Thematic Axis : Migration, Pluralism, Tensions over Identity and Interreligious Dialogue

Workshop 2. Interculturality: African and Afro-descendent perspectives

« Aloune Diop et le dialogue interreligieux »

(“Alioune Diop and Interreligious dialogue”)

Speaker : Paulin Poucouta, professor, Institut Catholique de Yaoundé, Cameroun, and member of the Centre d’Études Africaines de Recherches Interculturelles (CEAF&RI)

Résumé : Le sénégalais Alioune Diop, dont le centenaire de la naissance a été célébré en janvier 2010, est méconnu, même en Afrique. Au confluent des religions traditionnelles, de l'Islam, du christianisme, des cultures africaine, occidentale et orientale, cet intellectuel exigeant et intégral avait consacré sa vie au dialogue des cultures et des religions, fondement de la construction du continent africain et de l'humanité. Alioune Diop a su repérer les enjeux épistémologiques, thématiques et méthodologiques de la théologie africaine. Par ces intuitions, fruit de son expérience et de ses échanges, il jette les bases d'une réflexion chrétienne africaine, en l'occurrence sur le dialogue œcuménique et interreligieux. Pour lui, le dialogue entre des religions devait également prévenir l'Afrique des conflits. Alors, libérées des querelles religieuses héritées de l'histoire occidentale, les théologies africaines devaient être résolument œcuméniques, au sens large du terme. Il convient également de prendre en compte les nouvelles religiosités ainsi que les groupes ésotériques qui envahissent l'espace religieux africain. Ici aussi, le dialogue n'est pas facile. En s'inspirant d'Alioune Diop, les défis du développement, de l'éducation, des pandémies, de la paix, de l'Union Africaine et de l'avenir du continent pourraient-ils être des lieux œcuméniques mobilisateurs ?

Thematic Axis : Migrations, pluralism, identity constructions and interreligious dialogue

« Genre, migrations et interculturalité pour une justice relationnelle »

(Gender, Migrations and Interculturality for a relational justice)

Speaker : Albertine Tshibilondi Ngoyi, university professor and Secretary General of the Centre d'études africaines et de recherches interculturelles (CEAF&RI), Bruxels, Belgium

Résumé : Nous proposons d'examiner les avancées et reculs de l'égalité de genre en contexte interculturel, le cas de la diaspora africaine en Europe. Certes, il existe des instruments juridiques pour l'égalité de genre, mais leur mise en application pose problème dans plusieurs contextes. Deux décennies après les Conférences de Mexico à Pékin, la condition de la femme s'est améliorée, mais pas de la même façon partout dans le monde. Il existe donc différents mouvements féminins ou féministes liés à la diversité des contextes et des luttes pour l'égalité. Ces mouvements et organisations féminins/féministes d'Afrique et de la diaspora, en réseaux avec les femmes du monde, sont des lieux d'éveil, de rencontre, de solidarité, mais aussi de lutte pour l'égalité des droits et l'autonomisation des femmes dans l'espace africain, et au niveau international, notamment européen. Plusieurs défis restent à relever pour combattre les inégalités liées au genre, et des nombreux obstacles à franchir dont les fondamentalismes culturels et/ou religieux et politiques.

Axis: Feminism: the gender question and the intersectionality of oppressions

"Interculturalidad, migración y resiliencia cultural"

(Interculturality, Migration and Cultural Resilience)

Speaker: Roberto E. Zwetsch, Faculdades EST, São Leopoldo, RS – CETELA, Brasil.

Abstract: Uno de los fenómenos internacionales más importantes en el sistema internacional de nuestros días es sin duda la migración. Guerras, persecución política, el deterioro de la situación socioeconómica, tragedias ambientales, expulsión de territorios tradicionales son algunos de los motivos que obligan millares de personas a salir de sus lugares de origen en búsqueda de seguridad, oportunidades de trabajo, mejores condiciones de vida y perspectivas de futuro. En esas situaciones extremadamente precarias de vida, las personas migrantes se encuentran confrontadas con distintos conflictos, inseguridad, problemas de salud, conflictos sociales, culturales, sicológicos y espirituales de toda orden, además de intolerancia, agresiones y xenofobia en los lugares de refugio. Sin embargo, también se constata actitudes de solidaridad, comprensión y ayuda humanitaria, efectuadas sea por sectores públicos, civiles (ONGs) sea por comunidades de fe (religiosas). Considerando esta realidad empírica, la comunicación pretende evaluar de qué forma las personas migrantes encuentran en sus culturas y recursos espirituales factores de resistencia y resiliencia para la reconstrucción de sus vidas.

Thematic Axis: Migrations, pluralism, identity constructions and interreligious dialogue)

Workshop 3. The Decolonial Turn and the option for indigeneity

This panel aims to contribute to the Focal Area's proposed task of exploring non-dominant cultural resources that assist in shifting our theological thinking in ways that de-link us from the assumptions and practices that fortify the rule of modernity/coloniality over our everyday lives. It offers a two-pronged confrontation with the coloniality of theological thinking, exploring ways to delink, respectively, via engagement with ancient indigeneity hidden "within" the parameters of Christian (via Judean) biblical tradition, and modern emergent indigeneity "outside" the Near Eastern-Mediterranean-Germanic-"white" hybrid epistemology of the West. We hope that our papers, taken together, performatively enact what Edward Said has termed a contrapuntal reading of resources. However, whereas Said's contrapuntal approach moves between the perspective of colonizer and colonized, we intend our panel to create a contrapuntal movement between distinct loci of indigeneity that coloniality and its ancient predecessors attempt to put under erasure. Performatively, we thus put Said's contrapuntal method in the service of Enrique Dussel's call for transmodernity by modifying this call, in a more rigorously decolonial register, as an openness to what might be expressed as a kind of trans-indigeneity. Trans-indigeneity aids in highlighting the pluritopic sites of theological enunciation; announces trans-local coexistence as a complement, if not an alternative to "border thinking;" and unsettles liberal and liberationist theologies' comfortable reliance on modern western social justice paradigms.

"Resurrection of Jesus as Resurrection of the Ancestors: A Hermeneutic Prologue to Epistemic Decoloniality in Christian Theology"

Speaker: Steven Battin, University of Notre Dame, É-U.

Abstract: This paper proposes a constructive christology of ancestor veneration. The paper attempts to reconstruct ancient, pre-monarchic Israelite epistemology and practice pertaining to ancestor cults, and employ them as an interpretive lens for theologically articulating an alternative understanding of the meaning and significance of Jesus' resurrection. The claim is that this alter-image, rooted in a retrieval of suppressed Israelite indigeneity, facilitates decolonizing the Christian comportment toward indigenous peoples and non-Western knowledges today.

Focal Area: Decoloniality, Engaging Epistemologies from the South and Indigenous Peoples

"The Blues-Black Folk Blues: Blues Epistemology and the Quest for Trans-Plantation Humanity"

Speaker: Rufus Burnett, Duquesne University, É-U.

Abstract: This paper examines the blues epistemology of the Mississippi Delta peoples as a locus for articulating the relationship between theology and liberation, relative to a non-theistic mediation of revelatory gnosis through the sonic. The paper is an effort to re-read the cultural and epistemological production of the blues as a Mississippi Delta Region contribution to the pluriversality (Mignolo) of humanity forged under the forced reality termed by Anibal Quijano as the coloniality of power.

Focal Area: Decoloniality, Engaging Epistemologies from the South and Indigenous Peoples.

"Un/settling Relations within the Colonial Difference: Epistemic Disobedience and a Theology of Aurality and Healing"

Speaker: Joelle Morgan, St. Paul University, Ottawa, Canada

Abstract: This paper will explore some of the ways that Indigenous peoples and settlers are addressing systems of power that perpetuate coloniality. In Canada, the churches were instrumental in the colonial movement to "civilize/Christianize" Indigenous peoples, as witnessed in residential schools among other policies. A settler theology of liberation requires efforts to un-settle patterns of dominance that have shaped and continue to shape the relationships between Indigenous peoples and those of us who have come later to Canada as settlers. One group of primarily settler peoples on Algonquin/Anishnabe territory (in the Ottawa Presbytery of the United Church) has engaged in decolonization through a liberating praxis toward just relations with Indigenous peoples. Un-settling theology requires listening deeply to the challenge of Indigenous scholars who are offering ways to liberate theology and for theology to be liberating in light of coloniality. Drawing on theology, peacebuilding and decolonial research, I will explore the concept of liberation as that of salvation that can be understood as and rooted in social healing. The healing requires both sides of speaking and hearing, the oral and the aural, Indigenous and settler peoples together engaged in the possibility of just and fertile relations in, on and with this land.

Focal Areas: Aboriginal peoples, between marginalization and return to power; Decoloniality, engaging with epistemologies from the South and Indigenous Peoples.

Workshop 4. Deconstructing Representations that Produce Oppressions

"Jueces 19. Relectura indecente a partir de un caso paradigmático en México"

(Judges 19: An Indecent Re-reading Based on a Paradigmatic Case in Mexico)

Speaker: Dan González Ortega, Comunidad Teológica de México, DF, Mexico

Abstract: Marcella Althaus nos enseñó la gran valía de la teología como un acto de indecencia pero... ¿Qué hacer cuando esta se convierte en una paradoja? ¿Cuándo lo socialmente "indecente" se vuelve natural? ¿Hay que volver a un grado mínimo de "decencia" en razón de la vida humana?

Estas y otras preguntas le surgen al teólogo mexicano cuando la violencia en su país ha traído consigo más de 70 000 muertos en seis años, más de 10 000 desaparecidos y, el "copy right" de un concepto que ya hasta se puede traducir a diversos idiomas: "feminicidio". Yo no soy científico social ni político ni antropólogo, soy apenas un aprendiz de "todólogo" que debe pararse cada domingo o, en cada sepelio, frente a un buen número de personas a estructurar un sermón medianamente inteligente, es decir, soy lo que comúnmente se llama: "un pastor". Intento leer la Biblia en forma indecente. Leeré desde lo que Marcella llamaba "la continuidad de la teología de la liberación" donde textos bíblicos como el de Jueces 19 poco y nada han tenido para decir. Bien lo dijo Marcella ya en torno al quehacer teológico: "toda teología implica una praxis sexual y política [...]" Comprender o no Jueces 19 y los feminicidios en Ciudad Juárez procede de nuestra praxis sexual y política (y que decir teológica).

Thematic Axis: Feminism: the gender question and the intersectionality of oppressions

« Agir comme Abraham qui se soumet ou comme Dieu qui sauve le fils ? »

(Whether to Act like Abraham who Submitted or like God who Saves the Son?)

Speaker: Jean-Guy Nadeau, honorary professor, Faculty of theology and religious sciences, University of Montreal.

Abstract: Le sacrifice d'Isaac (Genèse 22) ou d'Ismaël (Sourate 37, 100-113), anciennement connu comme le Sacrifice d'Abraham, nous ramène au Père des croyants dans les trois monothéismes du Livre. Pour la majorité, il s'agit de l'acte de foi parfait demandé par Dieu à Abraham. On a beaucoup étudié et commenté les textes bibliques et coraniques le concernant et les exégètes sont arrivés à des lectures actuellement acceptables de ce texte troublant. Mais on a beaucoup moins étudié la réception théologique et liturgique de ces textes dans le judaïsme, le christianisme et l'islam. C'est ce sur quoi portera ma présentation avec textes et images. Des interprétations juives, chrétiennes ou islamiques louent bien plus la soumission d'Abraham qui est prêt à sacrifier son fils, qu'elles ne louent Dieu qui sauve ce fils. Elles datent certes d'autres époques, mais elles restent très actuelles et il est aujourd'hui choquant que la disposition sacrificielle d'Abraham par loyauté envers son Dieu y occulte le geste salvateur du Seigneur. Choquant et... dangereux. Pourquoi ce choix massif de louer la soumission plutôt que le salut? Peut-on continuer de proclamer à travers Abraham que la foi justifie les moyens?

Thematic Axis : Peacebuilding and the Struggle against Militarization ; Migration, Pluralism, Tensions over Identity and Interreligious Dialogue

« Décoloniser Kateri Tekakwitha »

(Decolonizing Kateri Tekakwitha)

Speaker : Jean-François Roussel, professor, Université de Montréal, Québec

Abstract: « L'histoire des Autochtones d'Amérique du Nord n'a jamais vraiment eu les Indiens pour sujet. Ce qui comptait, c'était bien plus l'histoire des Blancs, de leurs besoins, de leurs aspirations. » (Thomas King). La version dominante (non-autochtone) de la vie de Kateri, célébrée en 2012, reflète bien cela. Les premières biographies de Kateri rapportent relativement peu de paroles d'elle. Elles sont écrites par des jésuites, des hommes de l'élite religieuse française, venant d'un monde profondément différent du monde autochtone en général et iroquois en particulier. Dans ces biographies, Kateri est tout autant célébrée que réduite au silence. Alors qu'on affirme célébrer son identité autochtone, elle est méconnue en tant que femme de culture iroquoise, ce qu'elle n'aurait jamais pu cesser d'être pourtant. Cela reste vrai encore aujourd'hui. Kateri est aussi racontée par ses premiers biographes d'une manière androcentrique, repérable de diverses manières, et qui a été répétée par les biographies jusqu'à nos jours.

Dans ces conditions, malgré les apparences, Kateri reste enfermée dans des représentations coloniales et androcentriques. Quelle femme verrait-on émerger si on explorait un peu plus l'arrière-fond iroquois de Kateri Tekakwitha ? Qu'est-ce que cela impliquerait si on prenait ce monde au sérieux ?

Thematic Axis: Indigenous people: between marginalization and return with strength; Decolonialism: a meeting between the epistemologies of the Indigenous and the South

Workshop 5. Concealing: Feminist and Gender Perspectives

« Comment le féminisme islamique peut contrer la triple occultation des femmes croyantes musulmanes au Québec ? »

(How Can Islamic Feminism Counter the Triple Concealing of Believing Muslim Women in Quebec?)

Speaker: Carmen Chouinard, Université de Montréal, Québec

Abstract: L'approche intersectionnelle permet de constater que depuis la Révolution tranquille, les femmes croyantes du Québec sont occultées de trois façons : 1) La sécularisation a circonscrit l'influence des croyants (femmes et hommes) aux lieux de culte et à la sphère privée ; 2) Les féminismes québécois ont pour la plupart évacué la religion (dernier bastion du patriarcat) et les femmes croyantes ; 3) Les communautés de foi sont souvent structurées selon une hiérarchie patriarcale et elles tiennent les femmes à l'écart de certaines fonctions, dont celle de rabbin, de prêtre, d'imam. L'herméneutique féministe des livres saints permet aux femmes musulmanes de sortir de cette triple occultation. Un regard anticolonial, antiraciste de ces herméneutiques est proposé et illustre bien les efforts des femmes croyantes musulmanes pour participer pleinement aux débats sociaux et à la justice sociale.

Thematic Axis: Feminism: gender questions and the intersectionality of oppressions

« Conjointes de même sexe au sein du christianisme : quelques pistes libératrices »

(Same-Sex Couples in Christianity: Some Liberating Paths)

Speaker: Nicole Hamel, author published by Nicolibri Éditions and independent communicator

Abstract: Il s'agira de la présentation d'un cheminement personnel comme femme chrétienne dans un contexte social majoritairement catholique, de la découverte de ma réalité amoureuse pour une femme et d'un changement d'appartenance chrétienne en faveur de l'Église Unie du Canada. Quelques choix libérateurs et implications communautaires créatives orientent un engagement en faveur de l'inclusion des minorités sexuelles entre autres à travers une Implication dans l'organisation nationale Affirm United/S'affirmer ensemble et la fondation et la coanimation du groupe interspirituel Spiritualité entre nous. Comment allier discours officiel et réalité gaie? Celle-ci est-elle considérée comme dépravation ou comme don de Dieu? Comment comparer différentes attitudes en face du même discours chrétien, sur l'homosexualité et sur le mariage entre conjoints-es de même sexe? Dans l'Église catholique et dans l'Église Unie du Canada, la méconnaissance et l'inclusion du discours officiel ne fait pas l'unanimité. Il y a plusieurs degrés entre la fréquentation ou non des sacrements et le décrochage.

Thematic Axis: Feminism: Gender questions and the intersectionality of oppressions

Workshop 6. Les pages vertes de la Bible

(The Green Pages in the Bible)

Speaker: Norman Lévesque, Green Churches Network, Montreal, Quebec

Abstract: Les chrétiens et les chrétiennes seront plus motivés à prendre soin de la Création quand ils comprendront la cohérence avec la tradition chrétienne. La Bible contient une mine d'enseignements au sujet de notre relation avec la Création de Dieu. Cette conférence présente une synthèse des thèmes qui peuvent surprendre des fidèles, des pasteurs et même des théologiens. Préparez-vous à relire certains récits bibliques à travers les yeux d'un environnementaliste: Noé qui préserve la biodiversité, Jésus regarde les oiseaux et prône la simplicité, Adam qui cultive et garde le jardin, Jonas et les prophètes écolos... Rafraîchissant!

Thematic Axis: The challenge of hope in facing the ecological crisis

Workshop 7. Voluntary Simplicity as a Compass for “Another World that is Possible”

« Un autre sens de la « pauvreté » pour vivre autrement ?

(“Another Meaning of Poverty” to Live in Another Way?)

Speaker: Dominique Boisvert, Réseau québécoise pour la simplicité volontaire (RQSV), Montreal, Quebec

Abstract: L'activité a pour but de réhabiliter le sens original et positif du mot «pauvreté» (au sens de vie simple, axée sur l'essentiel) et d'en examiner les conséquences fécondes, au niveau de la vision sociale et économique, sur le type de monde que nous voulons construire. L'économie dominante est axée sur la richesse et l'enrichissement, individuels et collectifs, mesurés essentiellement en termes monétaires. Le modèle économique dominant, le capitalisme, est fondé sur la compétition et les supposées lois du «marché». Modèle économique maintenant mondialisé et dont on connaît les excès, les dérives et les conséquences désastreuses pour le plus grand nombre.

Un peu partout dans le monde, et particulièrement dans les pays plus riches, de plus en plus de gens s'interrogent sur ce modèle économique et choisissent de placer leurs objectifs ailleurs que dans les richesses matérielles. C'est ce qu'on a appelé ici la simplicité volontaire, mais qu'on appelle ailleurs de toutes sortes d'autres noms: minimalisme, buen vivir, mouvement slow, décroissance, assez, etc.

On redécouvre dans toutes les cultures que la vie mérite d'être vécue pour bien autre chose que la consommation et le compte en banque. Cette réorientation de l'économie, ce recensement sur les priorités humaines essentielles peuvent-ils avoir des conséquences concrètes sur le type d'économie à mettre en place pour notre «autre monde possible»? Est-il possible d'envisager une économie de suffisance et de priorités plutôt qu'une économie de croissance (illimitée) basée sur la compétition? Le «progrès» est-il compatible avec une économie de suffisance et de priorités?

Thematic Axis: Economy and going beyond the “homo economicus”

Workshop 8. La sécurité alimentaire et la présence solidaire de l’Église

(Food Security and the Presence of the Church in Solidarity)

Speakers: The pastoral workers of the Table of Pastoral Ministry of the Diocese of Montreal

Abstract : Si l'offre alimentaire s'est diversifiée, force est de reconnaître que les personnes qui vivent avec un faible revenu ou un revenu modeste n'en bénéficient pas vraiment. D'autant que le coût des denrées a augmenté de façon vertigineuse pendant que le revenu disponible, lui, stagne. Dès lors, de nombreuses initiatives ont été mises en place afin d'améliorer la qualité de vie des gens appauvris. Rappelons la définition de la sécurité alimentaire selon le Comité de la sécurité alimentaire mondiale, octobre 2012 : «La sécurité alimentaire existe lorsque tous les êtres humains ont, à tout moment, la possibilité physique, sociale et économique de se procurer une nourriture suffisante, saine et nutritive leur permettant de satisfaire leurs besoins et préférences alimentaires pour mener une vie saine et active.»

On constate que la sécurité alimentaire est un lieu où un grand nombre de chrétiennes et chrétiens se sont engagés dans le cadre de projets, paroissiaux ou non. Ce champ d'engagement permet à divers charismes de s'exprimer. C'est aussi un lieu d'action directe où la rencontre entre bénévoles et bénéficiaires est un moment à saveur humaine.

Au fil des ans, des projets variés ont vu le jour et aujourd'hui, le dépannage et les soupes populaires ne sont plus les seules véritables alternatives pour les personnes vivant l'insécurité alimentaire. Les cuisines collectives, les groupes d'achats et les épiceries solidaires combinent certains besoins où les bénéficiaires contribuent activement lors de l'activité. Les Magasins partages ajoutent une autre facette au dépannage alimentaire; celui de redonner la dignité aux gens qui ont recours aux services alimentaires. Les jardins communautaires et plus récemment les jardins collectifs viennent combler le besoin d'avoir accès à des fruits et légumes frais pendant une partie de l'année. C'est dire à quel point les besoins sont grands et l'importance d'avoir accès à une variété de services qui correspondent à une diversité de situations personnelles.

Focal Area: Economy and going beyond the “homo economicus”.

3:30 pm : Plenary – Transforming Kyriarchal Religions and Theologies: Feminist Approaches

Chair: Denise Couture

- Maria Pilar Aquino, professor of Theology and Religious Studies, University of San Diego, CA, USA, “Feminist Theology for Global Transformation: Shared Contexts and Commitments”
- Pauline Jacob, théologienne féministe, Femmes et Ministères, Québec, Canada, « Les mouvements féministes chrétiens québécois : persévérance et créativité »
- Luiza Tomita, teóloga feminista, President of Ecumenical Association of Third World Theologians – EATWOT, Brazil . “Violence and Rape as challenges to Kyriarchal oppression”

French, English, Spanish

(Simultaneous translation)

An exploration and analysis of the contemporary patterns of kyriarchal imperialism in religions and theologies, with a focus on both how they exacerbate women's subordination and violence against women and how feminist scholars of religion engage in practices to effect constructive transformation. Transforming kyriarchal imperialism entails for all, women and men, solidarity and collaboration in reconstructing unjust social systems and relationships that intersect with each other and that multiply women's subordination across social class, age, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation and other mechanisms of domination. These two panels will discuss the topic from different global contexts and from shared values and purposes aimed at supporting, in religious and theological terms, the intervention of religious actors in strengthening the global movement of justice for women and the global feminist struggles to end religious and theological kyriarchy.

Followed by a ritual conducted by Dr. Kochurani Abraham, Feminist Theologian, Indian Women Theologian's Forum, India

In collaboration with:

Mary N. Getui, professor, Catholic University of Eastern Africa, Nairobi, Kenya

Denise Couture

María Pilar Aquino

4:45 – Cont. (exchange and activity)

5:20–Book Launch: Nous sommes le territoire! (We are the territory) – by Groupe de théologie contextuelle québécoise (GTCQ) (Quebec Contextual Theology Group)

Since 2011, the GTCO has looked at the question of “territory” in a way that follows major events. It is an approach that is one of both citizenship and theology. They have adopted, as a point of departure, the problems related to the exploitation of natural non-renewable resources. Their book gives an account of the results of a growing awareness that territory is a central point where the threads of nature are linked to those of social organization as an anchor for a multitude of problems and so is also a mobilization point that opens onto the future. Supported by current events, this is a call for the transformation of our relationship with territory as it reveals itself to be decisive for a new appreciation of the question.

5:30 pm – Book launch of Religion, Human Dignity and Liberation at the World Forum on Theology and Liberation

The text, Religion, Human Dignity, and Liberation, is the edited proceedings of the past two meetings of the World Forum on Theology and Liberation (WFTL) that was held in Tunis, Tunisia, during the month of March in 2013 and 2015. At these meetings the WFTL integrated their sessions into the World Social Forum (WSF) injecting and incorporating reflection on religions and theological insights into the wider discussion engaged by the social movements gathered at the WSF. As theologians, understood in very broad and transdisciplinary perspectives, members of the WFTL (which also include activists, sociologists, political scientists and philosophers) all agree and strongly believe that religion, religious reflection and theology must be engaged by the social movements if they are to meaningfully transform human lives and our worlds in positive and lasting ways. To this end, the chapters included in this text, cover wide geographical and theological terrain. With contributors from Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Caribbean and North America, and covering topics such as gender issues, indigeneity, ecology, politics and liberation, this text presents some of the ways in which WFTL members understand and suggest we understand the role of religions, religious reflection and theological endeavor now and in the future. The editor, Gerald Boodoo, and one of the authors, Maria Pilar Aquino, will present the text which will then be made available to the public for the first time.

18h00 – Supper

All day: Muslims of Quebec Exhibition

The Justice and Faith Centre has joined with La VoiE des Femmes, a Muslim women’s organization, to present a photo exhibition called “Muslims of Quebec... and After?” It was undertaken to contribute to building awareness about the reality of Islam and Muslims as well as to assist in building a positive social fabric for an inclusive citizenship together. The photo exhibit attempts to move beyond the stereotypes that are too often presented and to offer portraits that take into account the diversity of Muslims in Quebec. The exhibit consists of images taken from the life of Quebec citizens, men and women, practicing Muslims, or at least perceived to be such by their host society. These people have accepted to offer a little of their daily life and their history to help us discover realities that are too often misunderstood. Four themes are presented by the photographs and the interviews that accompany them: religion and spirituality, work and professional career, participation as citizens and daily life.

During the WFTL, 12 of the 36 photos of men and women will be presented. Short texts of about 200 words (available in English and French) accompany each of the photos to present an issues related to the reality of Muslims.

A booklet also accompanies the exhibition. It offers a bit more explanation, facts and resources on the issues raised by the project “Muslims of Quebec... and After?” As indicated by the title, the exhibition points to the afterwards of the new awareness that will emerge.

www.cjf.qc.ca/ve/exposition<<http://www.cjf.qc.ca/ve/exposition>

7:30 – Presentation: “Voix du silence/Voices of Silence”

Jean-de-Brebeuf College, Jacques-Maurice Hall

Espace Art Nature

Isabelle Forest, Pierre Bérerd, Jean-François Lépine, Bénédicte Guillon Verne, Shany Geneviève Collard, interpreters

Stéphane Isabelle, Geneviève Labbé, musicians

Nicole O'Bomsawim, reader

Jean Noël André, technician Espace Art Nature

Mikayla Cartwright, reader

French, English

“Voice of Silence” is a production of Projet Citoyen and is supported by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. It was created out of the witness of survivors of the Indigenous Residential Schools. On the stage, readers, musicians, actors and puppeteers, French and English, from several cultures including the Innu, Abenaki, Attikamekw, Innuit, Metis, Quebec and French express the reality experienced by hundreds of young Indigenous people. Even more, they provide hope for a world moving toward a better way of living together. Their presence, their words, their games and their songs witness to how this is already happening. They are the voice of many voices that do not possess the force of word. It is a presentation offered in homage to all the childhoods broken by residential schools. The presentation will be followed by a discussion with the presenters.

Tuesday, August 9

8:30 am – 12:30 pm – Visits

We will go to places of social and spiritual practices where we will find resistance or alternatives for another world that is possible: Indigenous spaces or local organizations in Montreal. More detailed information will be given on Monday, on the opening of the forum.

2 pm: WSF opening festivities

Lafontaine Park, Montréal.

5:30 – 6 pm: Opening March of the WSF

From Parc Lafontaine to the Place of Festivals. Pojnt of departure of the WFTL group at the corner Parc Lafontaine Ave. and Rachel St.

6 pm – 11 pm: Grand Opening of the WSF

SELF-MANAGED WORKSHOPS AT THE WSF

CommunautéS en cercle : August 10 & 11, 9 am – 5 pm

Espace Arts nature	French, English, Arab	Centre Afrika 1644. St-Hubert St.
Creation of a Space. Coordinate and animate a physical space wthin the WSF centred on the theme of "living together" in the sense of inclusion, of the spirit of the Indigenous circle.*
Every day and several times each day, groups of about 20 to 25 persons will be able to participate in a circle of confidence. This means participating in exchanges in the spirit of the circle or sharing in the presentation of the showing of Innuksuk objects. There will be the permanent presence of Quebec elders of all cultures as witnesses of this spirit of the circle, a place of animation that includes exploring and creating a tree of life led by Shany (Innu) and Mikayla (Inuit).
Since 1912, several hundred people from every quarter, origin, religion and age have undertaken to participate in Circles of Confidence in the framework of an initiative called the Forum for a Citizen Project. Made up of Quebeckers of different cultures, Indigenous, Francophones, Anglophones and immigrants, we think that the original and innovative contribution we want to offer to the WSF Montreal 2016, can be found in the perspective of a real "living together" through exchange and respect of cultures and in with the idea of building a common space, a country for all. The presence of several friends of the First Nations in these circles and in the committee is an indispensable contribution to inclusion of the often painful history that has marked the encounters – and non-encounters – between the peoples who live in Quebec today.
It seems that the talking circles constitute a concrete, inevitable and enriching experience that shifts the centre of personal and cultural gravity. Each one is invited, on an equal footing, to listen to the other, who is different, to dare speak one's own word, to enrich the circle and so the common good. It is an original and extraordinary school of learning and a way of putting into practice this "living together." The practice of the talking circle is a way of living out the principle of horizontality according to which there is no hierarchy among the participants. It is an inspiring practice and constitutes a unique richness of our culture and the values it represents can be contagious.
These daily activities are not exhaustive and can be enriched by other contributions situated in the same spirit of the circle. Other events are programmed including the show "Voice of Silence" with sharing afterward. Finally, as a closing event on August 14, there will be an open ceremony at the top of Mount Royal Park with a joint ceremony of the friends of the First Nations and other Quebeckers.

Wednesday, August 10th, 9 – 11:30 am

Workshop 9. De quelle vision de l'État et de quel projet de société les politiques d'austérité néolibérales sont-elles le nom ?

(What Understanding of the State and What Social Project do the Neoliberal Austerity Programs represent?)

Organized by the Centre de théologie et d'éthique contextuelles québécoises (CETECQ) Chair: Lise Baroni, membre du CETECQ <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Éric Martin, Institut de recherche et d'informations socio-économiques (IRIS) - Michel Beaudin, CETECQ - Aurélie Lanctôt, Faculty of Law, McGill University, Montreal, Quebec 	French	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-2580) 400, E. Sainte-Catherine St.
Par-delà une simple description et analyse des modalités et des effets des programmes d'austérité comme tels, d'ailleurs foisonnantes aussi bien au Sud qu'au Nord et relativement bien connus aujourd'hui, cette table ronde pourrait chercher : (1) à résituer d'abord ces mesures dans l'arsenal des règles et des mécanismes du jeu économique et politique néolibéral ; (2) à débusquer la vision de l'État et du projet de société (conception de l'être humain, des rapports sociaux, du rapport à l'environnement...) dont les politiques d'austérité en cours sont un symptôme hautement expressif ; (3) à interpréter et à qualifier éthiquement et théologiquement cette vision ou ce projet ; (4) enfin, à indiquer des voies de sortie du projet «austéritaire» et des politiques qui lui servent de médiation ou de levier.

Workshop 10. Vérité et justice dans les coulisses du théâtre de la guerre

(Truth and Justice in the Corridors of the War Theatre)

Organized by l'ACAT Canada – Action des chrétiens pour l'abolition de la torture <ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Nancy Labonté -Danny Latour -Catherine Malécot 	French	Université McGill – Bronfman Building (Room O46) 1001, W. Sherbrooke St.
Cet atelier brisera le silence sur quelques cas afin de participer ensemble à réfléchir dans le sens d'une théologie contextuelle empreinte de vérité et de justice. En débutant, nous prendrons le temps d'examiner notre position personnelle à l'égard des fondements éthiques de l'interdiction absolue de la torture. Ensuite, une courte présentation sur le phénomène de la torture dans le monde nous sensibilisera à la cause. Le moment théologique débutera alors. Qu'est-ce que cela signifie que d'être chrétienne ou chrétien dans ces circonstances? Comment protéger la dignité et la valeur des personnes soumises à des actes de torture? Après avoir cerné les leviers de l'action chrétienne pour l'abolition de la torture, nous imaginerons le rôle des associations dans la transformation du dialogue social. Comment intervenir pour faire changer les discours de ceux qui croient en la torture? Comment faire reconnaître l'interdiction absolue de la violation des droits des personnes? Comment réparer ce que la torture a brisé? Ensemble, nous ferons un pas en direction de la réconciliation.

Workshop 11. L'Exercice des couvertures : Un exercice de sensibilisation à l'histoire coloniale et à la réalité des peuples autochtones d'ici

(The blanket exercise: an interactive exercise in awareness building about colonial history and the reality of the Indigenous Peoples)

Jean-François Roussel, Réseau oecuménique justice, écologie et paix Laurent Gagnon, Initiatives et changement Richard Renshaw, Réseau oecuménique justice, écologie et paix Joseph Vumiliya, Initiatives et changement Brian McDonough, Réseau oecuménique justice, écologie et paix (ROJEP)	French	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 877) 255, E. Ontario St.
Cet Exercice cherche à sensibiliser à l'expérience de la dépossession vécue par les peuples autochtones et à son héritage. Le temps d'un atelier, les personnes participantes interagiront, vivant quelque peu l'expérience historique, territoriale, affective, culturelle et spirituelle de la dépossession des peuples autochtones... peut-être aussi celle de leur résistance ? On terminera l'exercice par un partage entre les personnes participantes. Qu'est-ce que l'Exercice a révélé ? Quelles questions il pose ? L'Exercice des Couvertures a été créé par Kairos: Canadian Ecumenical Justice Initiatives en 1997. La version du ROJEP part de celle de Kairos en développant une perspective québécoise.

Workshop 12. Beyond Homo economicus

Rev. Sophie Rolland, Rev. James McDermott, Ms. Beth Reed	Anglais	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-2660) 400, E. Sainte-Catherine
We would like to host a conversation about the role of Christian faith in the wider discussions about the economic system within which we live. This conversation will begin as part of a workshop under the aegis of the World Forum of Theology and Liberation and within the context of the World Social Forum. Hopefully, this conversation will continue beyond the scope of the workshop. This workshop would be led by a number of Anglicans both clergy and lay who are working towards a faithful way to live out their Christianity within a broken economic system that values financial profit over all other forms of human flourishing. The purpose of this time together is not to receive instruction on a particular topic but rather to allow for an open conversation that is free to go in a variety of directions depending on who the participants are. It will be a time of sharing, and its success will depend on the active participation of everyone present. That being said, the conversation will not be rudderless but will rather be guided by three short presentations that will lift up three questions for discussion. The first presentation will explore whether our current economic system is so broken that a whole new economic system is required by looking at the intersection of Marxism and Christianity. The second will ask whether it is possible to act ethically in a form of engaged capitalism within our current economic climate. The third will look at the ways that Christianity has supported the inequalities in our economic system and how we can work to mitigate the injustices that have ensued.

Workshop 13. La vie symbolique et la libération humaine, une voix à explorer entre les Premières Nations et les autres

(Symbolic Life and Human Liberation: a Voice to Explore among First Nations and Others)

Organized by the Groupe Espace Art Nature <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Agusti Nicolau Coll, historian, geographer, independent explorer of the Western tradition - Christian Roy, historian of art - Geneviève Collard Hervieux, Innu social worker - Karim Haroun, film maker - Jean-Noël André, animator 	French	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 314) 255, E. Ontario St.
Les choses les plus immédiates de la vie fournissent la matière d'un système symbolique qui les relie entre elles, avec nous et avec la source ultime d'un ensemble cosmique où les êtres et leurs relations trouvent tout leur sens. Pour ne prendre qu'un exemple, le pain est déjà un symbole d'une profonde portée depuis des millénaires, des cultures néolithiques aux grandes religions. Le symbole pourrait ainsi se définir comme une partie concrète, visible d'une réalité invisible, de telle sorte que cette partie s'ajuste parfaitement avec la totalité réelle et permet d'y avoir accès. Dans les univers symboliques traditionnels —tels ceux des Premières Nations mais aussi des grandes religions, la vie cosmique intègre celle de la communauté et vice versa. Étymologiquement, le mot « symbole », venant du grec « symbolos » pour « mettre ensemble » a pour contraire le mot « diable », venant du grec « diabolos » pour « briser, fracturer ». Cela suggère combien l'être-ensemble tient littéralement au symbole et que l'alternative, la rupture du lien social et symbolique, a quelque chose de diabolique, enfermant les êtres dans un affrontement irréconciliable entre eux et avec leur environnement, en rivalité et compétition continues et stériles. Quel rôle une compréhension et une appréciation de la vie symbolique pourraient bien jouer dans le retissage du lien social à l'intérieur des communautés humaines et à plus grande échelle entre elles, par exemple entre les Premières Nations et les sociétés façonnées par la modernité, qui pourtant plongent elles aussi leurs racines plus lointaines dans des univers symboliques non moins cohérents? La vie symbolique est à la fois utilitaire et désintéressée. L'homme contemporain transforme en instrument tout ce qu'il touche, là où l'homme des sociétés traditionnelles transforme en symbole tout ce qu'il touche. Qu'ont-ils à se dire et à apprendre l'un de l'autre ? Leur dialogue est propre à mettre en lumière les points aveugles de leurs positions respectives afin de leur permettre de dépasser certaines impasses et même de cheminer ensemble par-delà celles-ci dans les voies non seulement d'une coexistence plus harmonieuse, mais d'une vie plus saine et riche de sens pour chacun. La religion comme la spiritualité sont instrumentalisées aujourd'hui, au même titre que la santé et le bien-être, comme des ressources à exploiter pour un avantage matériel ou politique, individuel ou collectif. À l'opposé, la vie symbolique dont les sociétés traditionnelles offrent l'exemple cultive le sentiment que même les choses ont une âme (animisme universel) et méritent d'être abordées avec respect. La confrontation de ces deux attitudes peut s'avérer fructueuse pour arriver à un rapport sain et juste avec tous les êtres. Elle permet notamment de poser la question des limites de notre corps individuel ou collectif, et de l'importance de les symboliser pour assumer les conflits.

Workshop 14. Nourrir et durer dans l'engagement social

(Being Nourished and Hanging on to our Social Commitment)

Organized by Carrefour de participation, ressourcement et formation -Guy Fortier -Marie-Iris Légaré -Claude Castonguay	French	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building SH (Room SH-2140) 200, W. Sherbrooke St.
Comment faire pour durer dans nos luttes pour la justice? Comment continuer à construire du sens ensemble dans nos engagements pour créer du neuf et contrer ce qui tue l'humain et son environnement? Le Carrefour de participation, ressourcement et formation (CPRF), pendant plus de dix ans, a parcouru le Québec pour en apprendre plus sur le sens qui anime les personnes et les groupes dans leur engagement social. Ces personnes et ces groupes nous ont dit que le sens et le souffle qui les animent sont nourris par 5 éléments intimement liés : la perspective de l'histoire de nos luttes et de nos engagements; les valeurs individuelles et collectives que nous portons; les appartenances que nous développons et qui créent de vastes réseaux de solidarité; les processus vécus qui apportent dignité et reprise de pouvoir dans nos vies et notre milieu; et le projet de société qui garde vivant l'espoir du changement et nous permet de garder le cap. Cet atelier a pour but d'explorer, avec les participantEs, comment ces cinq éléments nourrissent le sens et une spiritualité de l'engagement pour un monde différent.

Workshop 15. Nuestros ríos y nuestras montañas no se venden: las comunidades luchan por la justicia ecológica / Our rivers and mountains are not for sale: communities struggle for ecological justice

Organized by Development and Peace – Caritas Canada - Christian Champigny et Judith Faucher - Isaac Asume , Social Action (Nigeria) - Leana Corea, Coddeffagolf (Honduras) - Lidy Nacpil , Freedom from Debt Coalition (Philippines) - Padre Dario , Camboni Network/Justiça nos Trilhos (Brésil)	Spanish with French and English translation	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-M050) 400, E. Sainte-Catherine St,
This activity will attempt to tighten the links between the dominant economic model based on growth and growing ecological injustice by presenting the concrete experiences of Southern partners of Development and Peace who present alternatives to the dominant model of development. Climate change is not just an ingredient in the global ecological crisis that is now acting ruthlessly, affecting many communities in the world and risking compromise in the well-being of future generations. In fact, the current system is responsible for many other environmental problems generated by human activities. These degradations are intimately linked to problems in the social sphere such as the growth of inequalities, monopolizing land, attacks on food sovereignty, criminalizing defenders of the environment, etc. In this perspective, some people defend the idea that we can conciliate a growth economy and operate a real change in our lifestyles. These people underline the urgent need to create an historic path that is far from the dominant economic model and, for them, economic justice means rethinking globalization and revisiting our relationship with the earth and with others. This means questioning international trade, our relationship with money, our consumer habits, our transportation and agro-alimentary system, our view of development, and so on.

Wednesday, August 10th, 1 – 3:30 pm

Workshop 16. Le dialogue interreligieux féministe

(Feminist Interreligious Dialogue)

Organized by Maria'M, Groupe de dialogues entre chrétiennes et musulmanes Four members of the group Maria'M, two Christians and two Muslims, representing as much as possible the internal diversity of the two traditions.	French	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 215) 255, E. Ontario St.
L'atelier permettra de présenter une démarche originale et unique de dialogue interreligieux, celui de féministes enracinant leur engagement pour l'égalité des femmes et la justice sociale dans leur tradition religieuse et incluant la transformation de celles-ci dans leur lutte féministe. Au cours de ses 5 ans d'existence, le groupe Maria'M a développé une pratique et une réflexion sur la diversité des féminismes et sur les conditions de réalisation d'un dialogue interreligieux féministe que nous mettrons en discussion lors de l'atelier au FMTL. Les intervenantes présenteront aussi le féminisme croyant à partir du développement propre au sein de leur tradition et même au sein des dénominations et courants divers de chaque tradition.

Workshop 17. Laudato Si : A Call for Change

Organized by CIDSE – Development and Peace - Kairos: Canadian Ecumenical Justice Initiatives <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - P. Ismael Moreno, Fundacion ERIC, Radio Progreso, Honduras - P. John Patrick, Justice & Peace Nigeria - Shalmali Gutta (tbc), Executive Director of Focus on the global South - Jennifer Henry (tbc), Executive Director of Kairos: Canadian Ecumenical Justice Initiatives 	French, English, Spanish	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-M050) 400, Sainte-Catherine St.
In his encyclical, LAUDATO SI' (May you be praised), published in June, 2015, that deals with ecology and saving our common home, Pope Francis appeals for urgent action to counter the current ecological crisis and inequalities. He invites us to look beyond the symptoms of the climate disturbances and asks us to deal with their causes, that is to say, with the current means of production and consumption. The encyclical also asks us to take care of our common home and to bring about a transformation that will allow all human beings to live in a sustainable way with dignity. The message of Pope Francis is noteworthy not only for its acceptance of climate science but also for its rejection of the logic of the market. Since 2008, the sequence of financial, economic, climate, food and energy crises confirm the urgent character of a change of paradigm as much in the North as in the South. As it is now, the re-founding of political and social systems in the framework of a systemic change is slow in coming. A beginning has been made in the reflection: economists and politicians are questioning the old recipes, notably the growth of the PIB as the principal measure of the progress of society. The pressure of public opinion has also offered perspectives for change, for example in the matter of international financial regulations and the transparency of large corporations. There exist many examples and initiatives of support for a transition toward models of society and economy that are more egalitarian and sustainable. What should this transition look like?

Wednesday, August 10th, 8 pm - Sur les traces de Camilo (documentary) / El rastro de Camilo/ (In the Footsteps of Camilo) (documentary)

Jean-de-Brebeuf College, Auditorium Paul-Vanier G1-52

Diego Briceño, Director and Producer, Makila

Nicolás Herrera Farfán, Researcher, Fundación Colectivo Frente Unido

Lorena López Guzmán, Historian, Fundación Colectivo Frente Unido

To be confirmed: a representative of an ecumenical Latin-American organization

Spanish and French

This is the world premiere of the film “Sur les traces de Camilo,” a Colombian documentary about the life and death of the revolutionary Catholic priest, Camillo Torres Restrepo, disappeared in 1966 and considered by many to be one of the pioneers of liberation theology in Latin America. Afterward there will be a discussion with invited guests from various places about the pertinence of this personality in the current context of dialogue toward peace and reconciliation in Colombia and in the rest of the continent. The film is the result of 8 years of research in 7 different countries. On February 15, 2015, the anniversary of the death of this priest, it was premiered on Señal Colombia, a public television network in Colombia.

Following the presentation of the film, we propose a bilingual round table in Spanish and French. The round table will discuss lessons learned about the life and legacy of this figure through the long task of research and creation, but will also look at the paths opened for a renewal of his memory in a crucial moment of the history of Colombia when inspiring ethical references are needed in order to face the new era of hopes and opportunities for justice and peace.

54 minutes/Spanish and French/a production of Laberinto Producciones in co-production with RTVC - Señal Colombia and Les films grain de sable (France), with the support of the Ministry of Culture (Canada), CMMKL (Cuba) and the Fundación Colectivo Frente Unido.

Trailer and description in Spanish: <http://www.makila.tv/el-rastro-de-camilo/>

Thursday, August 11th, 9 – 11:30 am

Workshop 18. Transforming Kyriarchal Religions and Theologies. Feminist Approaches

Organized by the WFTL	English and French	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 213) 255, E. Ontario
-----------------------	--------------------	---

Moderator: María Pilar Aquino, professor of Theology and Religious Studies, University of San Diego, San Diego, CA, USA.

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Dr Kochurani Abraham, Feminist Theologian, Indian Women Theologian's Forum, Kerala, India - Mary N. Getui, professor, Catholic University of Eastern Africa, Nairobi, Kenya - Denise Couture, professor, Centre de théologie et d'éthique contextuelles québécoises, Faculty of Theology and Religious Sciences, University de Montreal: K. Abraham – « Encountering the Gender Politics of Religion: The Indian Story” M. Getui – “Gender Patterns in Governance- Focus on Kenya” D. Couture – « L'apartheid des femmes dans l'Église du populaire pape François : en prendre conscience, le contester et résister » / “Apartheid of women in the Church of the popular pope Francis: being aware of, contesting and resisting it” An exploration and analysis of the contemporary patterns of kyriarchal imperialism in religions and theologies, with a focus on both how they exacerbate women's subordination and violence against women and how feminist scholars of religion engage in practices to effect constructive transformation. Transforming kyriarchal imperialism entails for all, women and men, solidarity and collaboration in reconstructing unjust social systems and relationships that intersect with each other multiplying women's subordination across social class, age, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and other mechanisms of domination. These two panels discuss the topic from different global contexts and from shared values and purpose aimed at supporting, in religious and theological terms, the intervention of religious actors in strengthening the global movement of justice for women and the global feminist struggles to end religious and theological kyriarchy.		St.
--	--	-----

Workshop 19. Nonviolence, le fondement d'un autre monde possible

(Nonviolence: the Foundation for Another World that is Possible)

Organized by Antennes de Paix (Pax Christi International), Conscience Canada et Centre de ressources sur la nonviolence <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Dominique Boisvert 	French and English	Université McGill – Bronfman Building (Room O46) 1001, W. Sherbrooke St.
L'activité a pour but de (re)découvrir le véritable sens du mot nonviolence (sans trait d'union) et de constater jusqu'à quel point il s'agit d'un véritable changement de paradigme par rapport au monde actuel que nous voulons changer et ce, à tous les niveaux: rapport à la nature et aux ressources de la planète, rapports sociaux et économiques entre les individus et les groupes, rapport à la gestion des conflits inévitables, petits et grands, individuels ou collectifs, etc.

Workshop 20. Le revenu minimum garanti : Camper en dehors des murs de notre modèle économique

(Minimum Guaranteed Income: Camping outside the Walls of our Economic Model)

Organized by the Mouvement des travailleuses et travailleurs chrétiens du Québec MMTC <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Denis Plante - Christine Lafaille - Bernadette Dubuc 	French	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-2635) 400, E. Sainte-Catherine St.
Dans le cadre d'un plan d'action de quatre ans : « Bâtissons une société juste, fraternelle et durable ! », les droits économiques (partage des richesses et niveau de vie décent) ressortent d'une enquête terrain et alimentent notre analyse du Revenu Minimum Garanti (RMG) comme une solution possible aux droits économiques. Au cœur de cette analyse, le mouvement fait aussi une relecture de foi chrétienne de cet enjeu à partir de l'intuition des années sabbatique et jubilaire (lois capitales pour la justice sociale), dans l'Ancien Testament : libération des esclaves, remise complète de leur dette et redistribution radicale de la richesse. Les Évangiles se situent dans cette tradition. Ce sont de véritables appels à camper en dehors des murs de notre système. Cette activité se réalise sous la forme d'atelier d'éducation populaire utilisant tour à tour projection PowerPoint et discussion de groupe.

Thursday, August 11th, 1 – 3:30 pm

Workshop 21. The blanket exercise: an interactive exercise in awareness building about colonial history and the reality of the Indigenous Peoples

Richard Renshaw, Réseau Oecuménique Justice, Écologie et Paix Brian McDonough, Réseau Oecuménique Justice, Écologie et Paix	English	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 877) 255, E. Ontario
This exercise attempts to make us more aware of the dispossession experienced by the Indigenous Peoples and their heritage. During this self-managed workshop, the participants will interact, taking part in the experience of the indigenous peoples and living in some way their historic, territorial, affective, cultural and spiritual experience of dispossession... and perhaps also their resistance. The exercise will conclude with an exchange among the participants. What did the exercise reveal ? What questions does it pose for you ? The blanket exercise was created by Kairos: Canadian Ecumenical Justice Initiatives Canada in 1997. The version used by ROJEP is based on that of Kairos while developing also a Quebec perspective.

Workshop 22. Les mines : Impact sur la communauté locale

(Mines: Impact on Local Communities)

Organized by the Holy Cross International Justice Office Nicole Kirouac, Comité de vigilance de Malartic, Quebec Maxima Acuña, Peru Patricia Amat y Léon, Peru	English, French, Spanish	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 4.82) A 255, E. Ontario
Witness of two epic struggles: Malarctic in Quebec and in the Andes of Peru. Nicole Kirouac has struggled against an open pit mine that dared to set itself up in the centre of Malartic. Maxima Acuña refused to allow an open pit mine beside a lagoon near her home. The house was destroyed; the authors are before the courts; the mining project has been suspended. Patricia Amat y Léon, from Peru, will also be present.

Workshop 23. A North-South Dialogue on Extractivism : Resistance and Alternatives

Organized by MiningWatch Canada - Jamie Kneen, MiningWatch Canada - Gloria Chicaiza, Acción Ecológica - John Dillon, Kairos: Canadian Ecumenical Justice Initiatives	English, Spanish	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-2625) 400, E. Sainte-Catherine
Predatory extractivism — the exploitation of natural wealth for short-term profit without regard for its consequences — is being challenged ever more fiercely both intellectually and on the ground. Indigenous and popular movements, writers and thinkers in different parts of the world use different approaches and strategies, but the fundamental struggle for ecological, climate, and social justice is the same. This workshop will bring together reports from communities and activists on several continents, and weave them together as elements of a common struggle. It will then turn to the participants for reflections, stories, and ideas — experiences and experiments in breaking with the consumer capitalist paradigm on a more local scale, as well as in broader movements supporting more sustainable traditions (eg. Indigenous and peasant) against predatory extractivism and working towards more sustainable development models. Additional resource people are still to be identified : North American Indigenous, African, and/or another international Indigenous resource person.

Thursday, August 11th, 3 – 4 :30 pm

Sur les traces de Camilo (documentaire) / El rastro de Camilo (documental)

Diego Briceño, Director and Producer, Makila Nicolás Herrera Farfán, Researcher, Fundación Colectivo Frente Unido Lorena López Guzmán, Historian, Fundación Colectivo Frente Unido To be confirmed: a representative of an ecumenical Latin-American organization Spanish and French	Spanish, French	MAI (Montréal, arts interculturels) 3680, Jeanne-Mance St.
See description, p. 29.

Jeudi, 16h00 – 18h00 : Convergence assembly « Gendered Impacts : Indigenous Women and Resource Extraction »

Organized by Kairos: Canadian Ecumenical Justice Initiatives Viviane Michel, Executive Director, Quebec Native Women Pauktuutit Inuit Women of Canada Gloria Chicaiza, Acción Ecológica Beverly Longid, coordinator, Indigenous Peoples Movement of Self Determination and Liberation (IPMSDL), International People's Conference on Mining, Philippines Jennifer Henry, Executive Director, KAIROS Alma Brooks, grandmother, Maliseet Grand Council, Wabanaki Confederacy	Anglais, français, espagnol	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-M050) 400, E. Sainte-Catherine St.
Indigenous women from Canada and the global south offer perspectives on resource extraction that are often not heard or understood when evaluating a project's risks and benefits or when tracking the long term social and environmental impacts. Furthermore, there is growing evidence that women are differently and disproportionately affected by the negative impacts of resource extraction including environmental contamination, gendered based violence and other social, health and environmental impacts. Kairos Canada, Pauktuutit : Inuit Women's Association of Canada, Quebec Native Women (QNW), Acción Ecológica and International Peoples Conference on Mining (IPCM) are proposing a collaborative activity on the Gendered Impacts of Resource Extraction during the World Social Forum in Montreal, August 2016. This activity will be an opportunity to hear directly from Indigenous women and organizations from Canada, the Philippines and Latin America about impacts of resource extraction on their communities and to learn about their critical role in defending collective rights and the environment. The symposium builds on our collective work and findings on these issues which have been summarized in a series of videos produced by Kairos. (http://www.kairoscanada.org/what-we-do/gender-justice/gendered-impacts-symposium). This collaborative activity will focus on the perspectives and experiences of Indigenous women and organizations and highlights their voices and work.

The symposium will be an opportunity to profile the work that we have done so far, deepen understanding of the issues and the findings and strengthen the network of Indigenous women and organizations who are working with us on these issues.

Friday, August 12th, 9 – 11:30 am

Workshop 24. Construire l'interculturel à partir du contexte africain subsaharien : comment créer une justice intégrale?

(Building interculturality based on the Sub-Saharan context in Africa)

Organized by the Centre d'études africaines et de recherches interculturelles, Bruxelles (CEAF&RI) and the Groupe de théologie africaine subsaharienne, Montreal (GTAS) Presidents : Albertine Tshibilondi Ngoyi and Denise Couture For CEAF&RI : <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Albertine Tshibilondi Ngoyi, Bruxelles, «Éduquer à l'interculturalité : une initiation à la sagesse du bien vivre ensemble» - Paulin Poucoute, Institut catholique de Yaoundé, Cameroun, «Réconciliation et paix en contexte d'interculturalité» - Buuma M. Maisha, Saint-Paul University, Ottawa, «Culture violence et image de soi. Défis pour la construction et la libération du soi chez les survivantes de viols à l'est de la République Démocratique du Congo (RDC)» - Christiane Renard, Bruxelles, respondent For GTAS : <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Lindbergh Mondésir, Marie-Odile Kama and Hyacinthe Kihandi, Ph.D. students, Université de Montréal, « L'interculturel en contexte d'Afrique sub-saharienne : La parenté à plaisanterie et l'arbre à palabre au service d'un vivre ensemble pacifique » - Jean-Léon Longa, Ph.D. student, Université de Montréal, « L'intertribal pour la construction d'une paix positive en RDC » - Jean-François Roussel, Université de Montréal, respondent 	French	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 463) 255, E. Ontario St.
Le thème de l'interculturel pour construire un vivre ensemble exempt de domination et d'oppression est un impératif dans le monde d'aujourd'hui. Dans ce temps de mondialisation de tous les aspects de la vie, où prédomine une culture unique, comment les changements interculturels multiples que nous vivons émergent-ils d'une reconnaissance réciproque ? Comment les logiques d'interrelations se trouvent-elles au contraire instrumentalisées par des intérêts qui se situent du côté des pouvoirs de contrôle et de domination ? Comment ces deux perspectives s'entrecroisent-elles de manière complexe ? Cet atelier vise à répondre à ces questions en mettant en valeur plus particulièrement des approches et des sagesses issues du contexte des Afriques subsahariennes le plus souvent ignorées.

Workshop 25. « Témoins d'un monde nouveau qui émerge »

(Witnesses to a New World that is Emerging)

Organized by the Webzine Sentiers de foi <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Michel M. Campbell, Sentiers de foi - Gérard Laverdure, Sentiers de foi - Raymond Levac, Sentiers de foi 	French	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building A (Room A-2660) 400, E. Sainte-Catherine St.
En ces temps qui sont les nôtres, ce qui éclabousse et meurrit notre conscience, ce sont les injustices et les violences incessantes, le mensonge et la corruption endémiques, l'arrogance des puissants, le mépris du droit, de la dignité et de la liberté. C'est à désespérer des humains. Mais pour qui tend l'oreille et regarde attentivement, un autre monde apparaît, un monde en émergence, en consolidation. Il se fait du neuf. Des projets inspirés d'un « autre monde », d'un « autre Esprit », germent dans les cœurs et deviennent autant de sentiers fertiles dans la réalité de notre monde. Depuis plus de 10 ans, le webzine Sentiersdefoi.info présente ces initiatives hors piste, prophétiques, audacieuses, qui fleurissent en sol québécois. Des sentiers individuels et collectifs inédits comme autant de « pratiques évangéliques» qui humanisent les rapports entre les humains, ouvrent des horizons fermés, renouvellent la contribution citoyenne dans les enjeux sociaux. Des parcours qui redonnent du Souffle et de l'Espoir à nos pieds et nos cœurs fatigués par la longue marche collective qui fait émerger ce nouveau monde qui nous tracte de l'intérieur. Voilà ce que rapporte Sentiersdefoi.info, voilà le précieux trésor que nous voulons partager avec vous lors de cet atelier.

Workshop 26. Our Land, Our Hope: Experience of Dispossession in Palestine and Canada and Theologies/Spiritualities of Liberation

- Nora Carmi, Kairos Palestine, Sabeel Ecumenical Liberation Theology Center, National Coalition of Christian organizations in Palestine, Palestine Israel Ecumenical Forum -Elder Barbara Hill, Kitigan Zibi Anishinabeg, Québec, Canada, advisor to several organizations including the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa-Carleton District School Board, and the Public Service Alliance of Canada. She has been married to Larry, the love of her life, for 40 years. They have one son John, their pride and joy, who represents a new generation of hope for her people.	Anglais, français	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 801) 255, E. Ontario St.
Two women, Nora Carmi, a Palestinian Christian born in Jerusalem just months before the founding of Israel and Elder Barbara Hill, a First Nation Algonquin born on the Kitigan Zibi Indian Reserve outside of Maniwaki, Quebec relate their experiences of dispossession. As they speak, they discuss the historical and current realities of dispossession and the intersections of their experiences with theologies of liberation and indigenous spiritualities. After each woman has spoken, they will take time to respond to each other, before opening the floor to questions.

Friday, August 12th, 1 – 3:30 pm

Workshop 27. Oppression and Liberation: Diversity of Religious and Spiritual Perspectives

Organized by the WFTL. Chairs: Denise Couture and Agusti Nicolau <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Gerald Boodoo, Gerald Boodoo, professor, Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, USA: Christian traditions - José Bellver Martinez, researcher in the Program Ramón y Cajal, Centro Superior de Investigaciones Científicas (CSIC) at the University of Barcelona, Department of History, Esthetic and Philosophy of Culture: Muslim traditions - Kevin Ka'nahsohon Deer, Faith Keeper of the Mohawk Trail Longhouse, Mohawk territory of Kahnawake: A perspective on the Longhouse of the First Nations. 	English, French, Spanish	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building PK (Room PK-1320) 201, President Kennedy Ave.
---	---------------------------------	---

How can we contribute toward creating the elements for an interreligious dialogue on oppression and liberation as a central problematic for the WFTL? Such is the main objective of this activity, which will take the form of a round table bringing together panelists from diverse spiritual and religious traditions.

We want to respond to three main issues:

(1) The place of interreligious dialogue within the perspective of liberation. It is crucial to get beyond the (dominant) liberal view of an interreligious dialogue that seeks above all to avoid conflicts and to assure peaceful co-existence, that does not engage in a critique of the systems of domination, that meshes us with one another, that structures our world and leads to unequal relationships even within the dialogue. What we want rather is to try to situate ourselves in critical perspectives that can strengthen effective justice.

(2) A de-centering of the Western/Modern matrix. The current notions of oppression and liberation set in a Western and modern political tradition of resistance. The interreligious dialogue that we propose seeks to favour a de-centering of this matrix in order to open up to a widening and a deepening of the understanding of oppression as well as its content and to the orientation and deployment of liberation. This means that the pluralist and multi-religious analysis of oppression/liberation can lead to questioning whether this binary is pertinent and to the reformulation of its terms and perspectives through specific epistemic approaches.

(3) A gathering that will encourage learning about one's own tradition. How can we engage in a dialogue on these questions? How can we do more than just line up perspectives, one alongside the other? This is one of the challenges of interreligious dialogue. Can we make it possible to encounter each another in a way that is a vector for a renewed understanding of our own tradition in regard to the problem of oppression/liberation?

We want to cover a wide spectrum of the contemporary spiritual and religious diversity and take stock of a variety of ways of approaching oppression/liberation in various traditions even as we recognize diversity within each of them.

Without pretending to be exhaustive, here are some of the questions or topics that the panelists might address:

What place does the binary oppression/liberation (or its equivalent) occupy in the spiritual or religious traditions of the participants? Is it central and structuring, secondary and adjunct or nonexistent and not active?

What is the nature and content of these notions in the various traditions: What do you consider oppression to be? What do we need to be liberated from? Who or what is the subject of liberation?

Are there profoundly different ideas about oppression and liberation but that occupy an analogical function in each tradition?

Workshop 28. Theology of liberation: A gift to the world

Organized by OMI Lacombe Canada et St. Paul University, Ottawa Coordinator: Leonardo Rego, Director, JPIC OMI Lacombe Facilitator: Jean Bellefeuille, Canadian Religious Conference “Basic Christian Communities, Politics and Faith” - Catalina Romero, Professor at the Pontifical Catholic University of Peru, Instituto Bartolome de las casas pontifice “Social Organizations and Movements” - Maria Van der Linde, Instituto de Salud MSC “Christoforis Deneke” – ISDEN. Institución dedicada al Servicio de la Salud de las personas más vulnerables. Centro de Formación y Retiro Mons. Óscar Romero. “Missionaries in the World” - Fr. Ken Forster, Provincial OMI Lacombe Canada “Spirituality and Ecumenism” - Jennifer Henry, Executive Director, Kairos: Canadian Ecumenical Justice Initiatives Canada	English	Cégep du Vieux Montréal (Room 829) 255, E. Ontario St.
---	---------	---

Theology of Liberation is a gift to the world. Together Basic Christian Communities, popular movements, religious orders and ecumenical communities have adopted and practiced the Theology of Liberation in innovative ways as part of their daily living and in their work to empower the poor within their communities. Our speakers will share their experiences, best practices and challenges, and guidelines about how to become a better citizen, how to negotiate tensions between neoliberal economic policies and the protection of the common good, how to walk the path of reconciliation with Indigenous people, and how to work in solidarity with the poor for the common good.

Workshop 29. Pour sauver nos territoires : un regard à changer

(Saving our Territories: a Perspective Requiring Change)

Groupe de théologie contextuelle québécoise Guy Côté, theologian and GTCQ member, Montréal, Québec Christine Zachary-Deom, elected chief, Community Council of Kanahwake Michel Durand, Réseau Transition Québec	French	Université du Québec à Montréal – Building DE (Local DE-2550) 1440, Sanguinet St.
Dans la foulée de son ouvrage à paraître en juillet 2016, Nous sommes le territoire ! (Novalis), le GTCQ propose le thème d’activité suivant. Considérant qu’il faut passer d’une « vision objectivante et d’une attitude de domination » à un rapport d’interdépendance respectueuse et responsable vis-à-vis du territoire, les intervenants à la table-ronde aborderont la question suivante : «En prenant appui sur le regard porté par votre tradition sur le rapport au territoire, pourriez-vous indiquer concrètement des éléments qui pourraient conduire au changement de vision requis ?»

Saturday, August 13 (Jean-de-Brebeuf College)

8 am : Welcome

8:30 : Opening and Celebration

9:00 : Plenary - Decolonial theological encounters

- Michel Andraos, Catholic Theological Union, Chicago, USA. and Montreal, Quebec
- Lee Cormie, St. Michael College, University of Toronto, Canada
- Néstor Medina, Emmanuel College, University of Toronto, Canada
- Becca Whitla, Emmanuel College, University of Toronto, Canada

French, English, Spanish

(Simultaneous translation)

So far there have been only a few theological forays into Latin American decolonial thinking, but we think that this pathway is full of promise for the next generation of 'liberation' movements and theologies. It is inspired by the great breakthroughs of earlier generations. In light of the sheer proliferation of these 'new' – and in some respects very old – theologies and their marvellously rich histories, this pathway also challenges them and us to more inclusive perspectives on these movements and the ways they (with their limitations, failures and defeats) have contributed to changing the churches, other faith communities and the world. It challenges us to thinking across movements and with them over time. And it challenges us to recognize the limits of 'modern' Eurocentric epistemology and to engage respectfully the epistemologies of the 'others,' the 'non-modern' and 'non-Western' epistemologies of indigenous peoples, other civilizations and popular cultures. For us in Canada this way of thinking resonates powerfully with the critical discourses of many oppressed groups across the country and in particular with the critical discourse of indigenous peoples and their evolving leadership addressing a broad range of social justice/eco-justice issues as well as residential schools and their legacies, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) and its follow-up.

This panel does not offer a study of Latin American decolonial thinkers. Rather, it represents a series of experiments exploring the modernity/colonial framework in addressing specific aspects of doing theology in Canada in solidarity and dialogue with 'others' among us and around the world today.

10:25: Pause

10:45 : Plenary – Theologies and Liberation: the Current Situation

Luiz Carlos Susin, Secretary General of the World Forum on Theology and Liberation, Pontifícia Universidade Católica do Rio Grande do Sul, Porto Alegre, Brésil.

Kochurani Abraham, Indian Women Theologian's Forum, Kerala, Inde.

Mary Getui, Catholic University of Eastern Africa, Nairobi, Kenya.

Yves Carrier, theologian, Carrefour d'animation et de participation à un monde ouvert (CAPMO), Quebec, Canada.

Languages: French, English, Spanish

Beyond being a pastoral priority, the « preferential option for the poor, » that is to say for the most fragile and threatened, has become an epistemological principle in theology, while the « principle of liberation, » as a way to transform reality in order to guarantee a more abundant life for the poorest, has become an epistemological criterion. The two have given birth to theology of liberation. Since its beginning, this theology was pluralist and ecumenical. The pluralism and ecumenism flows from the diversity of social, ethnic and gender contexts. This makes it the first global theology. With dialogue and the theology of religions, which are always associated with the epistemological principles of the theologies of liberation, the over-all portrait has become quite complex. In this perspective, this panel on the current situation of the theologies of liberation will attempt to inform and to discuss some aspects of the panorama on different continents today without exhausting the richness and diversity of these theologies. Taking the perspective of each continent as a starting point, the panelists are invited to present a more extensive in-depth look of the global portrait these theologies represent.

12:15: Lunch

1:30 : Evaluation of the WFTL / WSF

An interactive process prepared by the group Espace Arts-Nature.

3:00 : Speeches and Closing Celebration

5:00 : 50th Anniversary of Development and Peace

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Ecumenical Network Justice-Ecology-Peace (ROJEP) as well as the Permanent Secretariat of the World Forum on Theology and Liberation (WFTL) wishes to express their profound recognition to the organizations and individuals mentioned below for their financial or other support. In addition to the generous contribution in personnel from many organizations and individuals or the organizational level, of which a more detailed mention is offered elsewhere, the invaluable solidarity of some many partners has proven decisive in the carrying out of this project of the World Forum on Theology and Liberation, a first in the northern hemisphere !

Thank you!

FINANCIAL CONTRIBUTIONS

Religious communities

Congrégation Notre-Dame
 Congrégation Notre-Dame du Perpétuel-Secours
 Filles de la Sagesse
 Institut Notre-Dame-du-Bon-Conseil de Montréal
 Œuvres Marie-Anne Lavallée (Oblates franciscaines de St-Joseph)
 Œuvres Le Royer (Sœurs Hospitalières de Saint-Joseph)
 Servantes de Notre-Dame Reine du Clergé
 Société des Missions-Étrangères
 Sœurs de la Charité d'Ottawa
 Sœurs des Saints Noms de Jésus et de Marie
 Sœurs Auxiliatrices
 Sœurs de la Miséricorde
 Sœurs de Sainte-Croix
 Union des Ursulines du Canada (Québec)
 Anonymus donation by a community

Churches

Quebec Catholic Bishops Assembly
 The James Robertson Fund at The United Church of Canada Foundation
 Anglican Church

Foundations

Fondation Béati
 Catherine Donnelly Foundation (Toronto)

Institutions of Theology and Religious Studies

Faculty of theology and religious studies of the University of Montreal
 Department of Theological Studies of Concordia University
 Faculty of Theology and Religious Studies of Laval University Organizations
 Development and Peace
 ROJEP

Individuals

Two anonymous gifts
 Participants in the WFTL

IN-KIND CONTRIBUTIONS

Centre justice et foi (meeting spaces)
 Confédération des syndicats nationaux (CSN) (material)
 Espace Art Nature (« Voix du silence» and other elements)
 Faculty of Theology and Religious Studies of the University of Montreal (support for a intern at the WFTL)
 Oblates franciscaines de Saint-Joseph (coordination of volunteers and the cost of a meal for this group)
 Paroisse Ste-Madeleine d'Outremont (meeting space)

